“...Jazz is America's musical contribution to the world. Certainly people everywhere honor us for this gift we share with the entire human society. The United States can truly be proud of its own musical product, jazz. Unfortunately, while we are honored everywhere, we are "a prophet without honor" here at home.

Let's face it; we've become importers. We send our best jazz to the four corners of the universe. The youth everywhere listen to our greats in jazz; absorb us, and then produce their own brand of music which at best is watered-down Americana. This we in turn buy, and this is what our "new" generation feeds on. A few jazz musicians such as Armstrong, Ellington, and some others have attained international stature and do find lucrative employment at home, but too many of our natural greats are forced out of their field of endeavor in order to survive.”
