THE BEST CANTORIAL WORKS OF CANTOR LEIBELE WALDMAN

Hayein Yakir Li
Ata Yodea
V'Chol Hacha'yim
Retze Yimnuchosaynu
Ki K'Shimcho
Lefichoch
Zochratnu B'zikaron
Al Horishonim
Sarfe Maloh
Oodem Yesodo Meofor

The Greater Recording Co.
Inc.

Gramovox Golden Voice Recordings
“MASTERWORKS OF THE GREAT CANTORS SERIES”

Song and music have always played an important role in Jewish culture. Indeed, the Bible itself enumerates the various musical instruments used during Temple days as well as the songs sung by the Levites during the services. The earliest reference to music is found in the Book of Genesis (IV, 21) where Jubal is mentioned as the world’s first musician. Early Biblical music, however, was primarily of a religious nature, used mostly in prayer and during religious holidays. After the destruction of the Second Temple, synagogues called Makkot μακκακά became the centers of Jewish worship. In these small houses of worship, the services were conducted by representatives of the congregation, Sheliach Tzibbur. The first cantors were known as Paytanim (poets) and they not only sang the melodies but also composed the tunes and poems as well. The Paytan took the place of the Levites who performed the Asodah (service) in the Temple. These cantors inspired the people with beautiful liturgical melodies of the written prayers and helped to maintain a continuous interest in Jewish song and music. Unfortunately, the early cantor was not professionally trained in the art of musical notation, thus many fine musical compositions were forever lost. The ancient melodies that remain today have been passed on from father to son, generation to generation, and are accepted as the pillars of the synagogue liturgy.

With the advent of the Siddur, many new melodies were introduced to the Jewish people. Compositions called "Zmirot" were chanted at the Sabbath table and on other religious occasions, adding beauty and spiritual uplift to the Jewish home.

The year 1754 marked the founding of the Chassidic movement by Rabbi Israel Baal Shem Tov. This was most significant to Jewish musical history. Chassidism stressed the emotional rather than the rational aspects of religion. Their belief that certain emunot (religious beliefs) are better expressed by song or dance, paved the way for new compositions of spiritual inspiration and elevation. Early Chassidic leaders constantly encouraged their followers to create new melodies in honor of various religious occasions, thus enhancing their observance.

Cantorial music as it is known today first took root in Eastern Europe at the start of the 19th century. Eager students looked for the early masters and a number of cantorial schools soon developed. Each school was noted for its individual style. Musical notation was still uncommon in cantorial circles, forcing the young cantors to memorize hundreds of intricate compositions. This sometimes resulted in a temporary lapse of memory, which tested the cantor’s skill in improvisation.

The continuous appearance of new melodies and compositions eventually helped the formal acceptance of musical notation by the cantors. Unfortunately, this was not at all unusual for a student to attend a professional school of music, while continuing to generate new cantorial lessons. Larger cities enjoyed full time cantors who organized choirs to enhance the services. Smaller towns favored congregational singing without cantorial embellishments, blending their singing with that of the Bial Tzikho.

The twentieth century brought unrest and persecution to the Jews of Eastern Europe. Countless restrictions were placed on the Jewish community by the European governments and the Jew was the first to be deprived of his religious freedom. This unfortunate situation encouraged many Jews to leave Eastern Europe and settle in America. Little did those immigrants realize how fortunate they were. Those Jews who remained in Europe were later slaughtered in the greatest holocaust that ever befell the Jewish people. Among the early immigrants that came to the Western world, were cantors with voices whose equal are seldom heard today. This marked the start of a new era known as "The Golden Age of Cantors."

This great era was not destined to endure for long. With the death of the twentieth century cantors, people were deprived of an art priceless to Jewish culture and music. Few cantors recorded their music. Today these recordings are collectors' items and the original discs are extremely rare.

Many of the performances appearing in this series were among the first discs to be recorded on phonograph records.

Appearing is a collection of the most famous masterpieces of the great cantors. These recordings were expressly engineered to recapture the listener the full flavor of actual concerts by the artists as they performed many years ago.

The latest technical advances have been employed to best represent the original voices in both range and quality of sound. Special engineering skills were used to make it possible for the Greater Recording Co., Inc. to offer you a recording of superior quality and the highest attainable standards.

OTHER NEW RELEASES

- Jo Amar Sings Most Popular Songs of the Israeli Hit Parade (vol. 2) GRC158
- Yossele Rosenblatt Cantorial Masterpieces (vol. 9) GRC156
- Moise Oshner At His Best (vol. 2) GRC154
- Cantor Zavel Kwarin Sings His Original Compositions (vol. 2) GRC152
- The Art of Cantor Gershon Sirota (vol. 2) GRC150
- Cantor Moshe Koussevitzky Sings His Most Famous Synagogue Masterpieces (vol. 2) GRC148
- The Best Cantorial Works of Cantor Pierre Pinchak (vol. 2) GRC146
- Cantor Yossele Rosenblatt Sings His Most Famous Cantorial Compositions (vol. 2) GRC144
- Cantor Moshe Koussevitzky Sings Yiddish Folk Songs (vol. 7) GRC142
- Cantor Moshe Koussevitzky Sings His Most Famous Synagogue Masterpieces (vol. 1) GRC140
- Cantor Zavel Kwarin Sings His Best Cantorial Works (vol. 1) GRC138
- Jo Amar Sings Chassidic Nigunim & Hebrew Concert Hits GRC136
- The Epstein Bros. Orchestra Present 20 Chassidic Melodies GRC134
- Hava Nashira - Chassidic Sing Along - With Cantor Aaron Liebeng and His Sons GRC132
- The Minzer-Cord Orchestra and Singers play the Nigunim of Jack Spivak GRC130
- Original Chassidic Nigunim Sung by Eli Lipsker and his Children's Choir with Orchestral accompaniment GRC128
- The Noam Singers feature the Hebrew version of "Those Were The Days" and other Concert Hits GRC126
- Cantor Elihu Tzemach From My Heart To Jerusalem GRC124
- Cantorial Masterpieces GRC122
- Cantor Yossele Rosenblatt sings his Original Chassidic Nigunim GRC120
- Cantor Moshe Teube Sings Synagogue Masterpieces GRC116
- Shlomo Carlebach In Live Concert "I Heard The Wall Singing" (vol. 2) GRC114
- Shlomo Carlebach In Live Concert "I Heard The Wall Singing" (vol. 1) GRC112
- Lipshker and The Yeshiva Orchestra In Concert GRC110
- Meir Levy Sings Israel’s Most Joyous Songs GRC108
- Meir Levy Sings "Jerusalem of Gold" and other Songs GRC104

Complete Catalog Write: GREATER RECORDING CO., INC., 104 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y.

© Copyright 1969 by GREATER RECORDING CO., INC. All rights reserved.
RARE CANTORIAL MUSIC
THE BEST CANTORIAL WORKS
OF CANTOR LEIBEL WELDSMA

GRC 164
33 1/3 RPM
SIDE 1
YB-729

1. HAVEIN YAKIR LI
2. ATO YODEA
3. V'CHOL HACHA'YIM
4. RETZE VIMNUCHOSAYNU
5. KI K'SHIMCHO

© Copyright 1970 by
GREATER RECORDING CO., INC.
All Rights Reserved
RARE CANTORIAL MUSIC
THE BEST CANTORIAL WORKS
OF CANTOR LEIBELE WALDMAN

1. LEFICHOCH
2. ZOCHRAYNU B'ZIKORON
3. AL HORISHONIM
4. SARFE MALOH
5. ODOM YESODO MEOFOR

© Copyright 1970 by
GREATER RECORDING CO., INC.
All Rights Reserved